

SPRING/SUMMER '19 INSPIRATION

A Golden Age

Ochre has been making its way into interiors and fashion for the past few seasons, but we predict SS19 will be the season that sees its height of popularity in the home. Channeling the feel of warmer days, Ochre adds depth to neutral schemes and drama to darker ones. This earthy, warm colour palette can be introduced in different degrees in many colour schemes.

OPPOSITES attract

Introduced at the January Furniture Show, we experimented with the Ochre colour theme on our brand new collection, Lorenzo. Offering an extensive range of pillow and standard back options, this range is set to become the star of 2019. We teamed our best selling Plush range of fabrics with a brand new co-ordinate collection called Shambala. Mixing tones of inviting Ochre and dramatic Charcoal created a striking look.

Pure & Simple

Soft furnishings in a selection of textures can make a big impact when displayed together. Velvets, wools and textiles with movement are big in the interiors sector at the moment, and paired with neutral shades such as sand, linen and oatmeal evokes a timeless, relaxed look and feel. These warmer, friendlier tones are starting to become as popular as the greys we have seen so much of in recent years.

TONES & Textures

As the days get longer and nature comes back to life after the long, dark winter, we naturally want to replicate the lighter, brighter world outside in our homes. Nature often inspires interiors, and SS19 will be no different. This season sees us introduce a number of new bouclé body and co-ordinating fabrics, such the Gio body fabric presented on the brand new Como model shown here, with scatters in new co-ordinating fabric, Herdwick, in Taupe and Latte. The Como offers a snug, sumptuous sit, perfect for real family homes. Included in the range is our first ever Snuggler Chaise!

Feeling in the Pink

This pretty hue can certainly pack a punch when it comes to creating a sophisticated scheme with a hint of romance. Although pastels have been popular in recent years, 2019 looks set to be the year that greys and neutrals are broken up with blush, dusty pink tones and delicate floral prints across the home, creating a more muted, refined look.

FEELING feminine

Pink is a soothing, happy colour and has been traditionally associated with nurturing and femininity, but when used with greys or a cooler base tone, today's pinks are all grown up! We interpreted this look on our brand-new Tivoli model (right) presented in new fabric, Ashcroft, Blush. Ashcroft is a luxurious fabric with bouclé and chenille yarns which give it its highly textured yet soft handle. The scatter fabrics from our new Topanga hanger feature uplifting foliage prints which add subtle botanical accents.

Black & White

Everyone knows that grey has dominated the interiors sector over the past few years, but we think monochrome is set to make a come back in 2019. With so many ways to interpret this classic trend, it will never go out of style. The beauty of a tight colour scheme like black and white means you can introduce playful prints and patterns with ease. If being bold is not your thing, you can still use the palette on accent pieces such as scatter cushions and foot stools.

MARVELLOUS monochrome

We've gone for prints in a big way this season! The monochrome trend has allowed us to introduce an amazing array of co-ordinating prints in our brand new hanger, aptly called Black & White! And we've introduced brand new body fabric, Flair, into our upholstery swatch. This super soft chenille fabric with a melange yarn gives it a subtle speckled effect and works brilliantly in the Charcoal colour-way when paired with co-ordinating fabrics from the Black & White hanger, creating a stunning visual look. The new Luca range is the perfect vehicle for this look with its strong architectural aesthetic. Make sure you add some accent pieces in these strong prints to make the most of your display!

Precious Metals

Edgier than the feminine tones out there this season, we predict metallic tones such as silver, rust and bronze will be more noticeable in homes this year. Perhaps influenced by Pantone's Colour of the Year for 2019, Living Coral, these earth-tones evoke vitality and buoyancy. Silver tones work great on body fabrics, with terracotta and teal tones adding a vibrant pop of colour on accent pieces and scatters.

We reinvigorated the best-selling Metro range by presenting it in Berber Silver for SS19. A distressed chenille fabric with a glamorous lustre, Berber works really well with metallic tones as it reflects light and adds depth. We love co-ordinating these tones with earthy orange tones and inky blues. Our new co-ordinate fabrics this season include the Umbra range, a modern twist on an impressionist style design printed on a sophisticated textured velvet, and Prisma, a luxurious cut velvet in a stylish geometric zig zag pattern.

Out of the Blue

Soothing and serene, tranquil tones of blue can be teamed with so many decor schemes that it's no wonder it makes an appearance most seasons. It can inject warmth and add a touch of luxury to homes in a cost effective manner. Since Denim Drift was named Dulux colour of the year back in 2017 we have seen a marked increase in demand for blue fabrics and prints across our product portfolio.

Brand new for SS19, the Alto is the latest edition to the Content by Terence Conran range. This striking model has all the hallmarks of a typically contemporary Conran design, sitting on a clean, linear plinth made of solid oak. Presented in brand new colour-ways of Alder, Sea Grass and Duck Egg, this velvet has a wonderfully soft texture and depth of colour. Continuing with the blue trend, and also part of the Conran range, is the Alfie chair in Maple Mist, a highly durable wool effect fabric. Sitting on tapered, conical legs, this eye-catching wing chair looks soft and sophisticated in this paler shade of blue.
